Information Sheet

Introduction

The ENVIRONET (Network of Environmental Remediation and NORM Management) has been created to enhance the sharing of knowledge and exchange of experience amongst different stakeholders in the fields of Environmental Remediation and NORM (Naturally Occurring Radioactive Material) Management with the vision to facilitate the implementation of projects in these areas worldwide in a timely, safe and cost-effective way. Since its inception, the network brought together practitioners, implementers, decision and policy makers, researchers, and regulators from diverse backgrounds and expertise levels in environmental remediation and NORM management.

For more than 15 years, the ENVIRONET has evolved in response to international needs and interests. Initially focused on organizing training events, the network has expanded its scope to encompass a diverse range of activities aimed at achieving tangible outcomes. These include implementing dedicated projects resulting in technical reports, organization of webinars and establishing Communities of Practice. The intent behind these initiatives is to apply the knowledge gained to real situations. ENVIRONET also offers eLearning materials, a forum for discussion and other features in its website in the IAEA CONNECT Platform that can be found at:

<https://nucleus.iaea.org/sites/connect/ENVIRONETPublic/SitePages/Home.aspx>

The ENVIRONET steering Committee is composed of more than twenty members from Member States located worldwide. This ensures that the network gives due representation and captures challenges and needs from Member States with more and less advanced programmes in environmental remediation and NORM management.

The biennial meetings of the network represent a key activity of ENVIRONET as they allow the ENVIRONET community and other professionals working in the field of Environmental Remediation and NORM Management to exchange experiences, update each other on recent development in their national programmes, be informed about achievements of the network and also participate in group activities.

Objectives

The Environet meeting will have the following objectives:

- Share updates and experiences on environmental remediation projects in IAEA Member States, focusing on key topics such as holistic approaches, uranium mining sites, groundwater remediation, capacity building, regulatory framework, and sustainability.
- Review outcomes of recent ENVIRONET projects, including ongoing reports.
- Discuss future priorities and activities, including potential new projects and activities.
